ASSESSMENTS, ZONING WILL BE CONSIDERED IN PUBLIC MEETINGS

by Al Skolnik

The city council has scheduled two public meetings next week. One will consider adoption of special assessment procedures and the other will discuss the city's appeal of the July 6 zoning decisions of the county commissioners.

The first meeting, on Monday, July 26, will consider general policy with respect to special assessments for roads, sidewalks, storm drainage and other neighborhood improvement items. The council is faced with levying a special assessment for the Greenhill-Hillside Rd. cut-through and for the Ridge Rd.-Lastner Lane connection. It has been asked that any policies adopted for these as to assure equitable treatment.

Current thinking of council is that abutting property owners should pay the full costs of new roadways, except when such roadways are used for more than neighborhood traffic, as indicated by the width of the road. Before settling upon a general policy, however, the council wants to investigate such matters as whether the assessment should be on a front-foot benefit basis or square footage basis, and whether assessments should also apply to widening or improvement of old roads. Also to be decided are such details as the period of assessment (5 years, 10 years?) and the procedures (public hearing?).

Civic associations, county authorities, and the city solicitor have been asked to attend the meeting.

Zoning

The second meeting, on Tuesday, July 27, will consider the action to be taken with respect to the latest zoning decisions of the county. At that time, the city will have the recommendations of its special zoning counsel, Joseph DePaul. The city has 30 days in which to appeal the decisions. In the meantime, the city has joined with College Park in requesting that a public hearing be held on the revised Area 13 plan, the original of which has been sent back to the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission for reduction of densities.

Parkland

At last Monday's meeting, council took several steps forward in its parkland acquisition program. It directed the city manager to apply to the federal government for financial aid under the Open Spaces Land Program and to seek approval of the government in instituting condemnation procedures to acquire the land, if such action becomes necessary. The council is considering several privately-owned parcels of land around Greenbelt Lake for parkland.

Introduced for first reading was a city ordinance authorizing a $250,000 bond issue for purchase of land for parks and a city warehouse. The bond issue would be subject to a referendum approval at the September 21 election. The bonds, which would be issued in denominations of $5,000 with a maturity of up to 15 years, would be put out for sealed bids. It is anticipated that the annual charges for principal and interest would run between $18,500 and $23,000.

New Traffic Signal

The city learned this week that the State Roads Commission will commence installation of the traffic light at the corner of Greenbelt Rd. and Edmonston Rd. The city has had a long-standing request for a traffic light at this intersection, which is the only exit for Springhill Lake Apartment dwellers.

Warehouse

The council discussed a site for the new city warehouse (municipal service building), but reached no conclusions. One of the problems is the cost of the different sites

PLAYGROUNDS GET NEW EQUIPMENT

The city's Public Works Department has scheduled several major park and playground development projects during the summer, according to City Manager James Giese. Authorized in last year's municipal budget, the three principal projects to be undertaken are a major tot lot in the grove next to the swimming pool, a playground and picnic area at the top of Ridge Rd. near 73 Court, and the Greenbelt Lake Park. In addition, miscellaneous pieces of equipment will be added to other neighborhood playgrounds throughout the city.

All of the special equipment ordered for the playground behind the parking lot in the city center has already arrived, Giese announced, and work should start there in the near future. A candy cane entrance way and a fence with cartoon characters will set off the tot lot. Inside the playground there will be a new swing set, a saddle slide, and a "rocket," a new style of jungle gym. For the watching parents there will be a "mother sitter," something like an old-fashioned swing for two.

Picnic tables and grills, a swing set, and a new slide are slated for installation near 73 Ct. of Ridge. Additional picnic tables and grills will also be installed at the Lake Park. But for the first time, the park there will also include play equipment for children—swings, a slide, a pull-around, a climbing frame called "Catty Caterpillar," and two Saddle Mates (animal shapes on heavy springs), one a donkey and one a pelican.

Swimming Meet Saturday

The Swim Team will compete at a home meet on Saturday, July 24, at 9 a.m. against a team from Burn Brae.

New Construction Projects At Greenbelt National Park

by Virginia Beauchamp

Construction projects are now under way at both ends of Greenbelt Park when ground was broken earlier this summer for a new U. S. Park Police substation just inside the Greenbelt Rd. entrance to the park. The $128,500 contract for the stone and plywood panelled building was awarded recently to the Weiss Construction Co. of Washington. Starting and completion dates for the work have not yet been announced.

The Park Police substation, screened from Greenbelt Rd. by a stretch of forest, will be located to the right of the park entrance road, not far from the driveway into the park's maintenance yards. It will be a one-story building, 2700 square feet in area, consisting of offices, a hearing room, a waiting room, an interrogation room, and locker and squad rooms. A parking area for 40 cars will be located adjacent to the building, but there will be no garages.

Park Police officers assigned to the new substation will have jurisdiction over the Baltimore-Washington Parkway (including Greenbelt Park) as far north as Route 175 at Jessup. A liaison man will also maintain communication with the Superintendent of the Catoctin Mountain Park for emergency assistance there. In addition, the force will maintain a concurrent jurisdiction in the Patuxent Wildlife Refuge, located east of the Parkway and north of the NASA site.

New Campground

In the meantime, the National Park Service, through the office of Senator Daniel B. Brewster, announced the awarding of a $42,684 contract to Schweigert, Inc., a mechanical contracting firm from Clinton, Md., for construction of campground roads, parking facilities, and water lines for a new 100-unit campground to be developed at the southern end of the park. This new camping area is about a half mile from Good Luck Rd. and west of the campground described in the June 3 issue of the News Review. The work to be performed by Schweigert will be preliminary to the building of three comfort stations to serve the new area, the contract for which has not yet been put out for bids.

Already roughed out in the first 100-unit campground to the east are access roads and trailer parking spaces. This work has been done by the Parkwood Equipment Co. of College Park, whose $34,628 contract with the Park Service was awarded last August. All of these roads and trailer sites will eventually be blacktopped.

Lay Water Mains

This road work is being held up temporarily, however, pending the laying of water mains leading to the three comfort stations, now under construction by C. W. Stark of Alexandria, Va. The principal water mains will lie beneath the paved roadways, and one of these will link up with the three projected comfort stations in the second campground.

The first campground is scheduled for completion in October; the second, somewhat closer to Kenilworth Ave., is to be finished sometime next spring.

Fireflies for Goddard

Greenbelt's participation in the collection of fireflies for the Goddard Space Flight Center, to be used in life-detection research, has got off to a good start. On Thursday, 15 July, Boy Scout troop 202 was briefed on methods for collecting and preserving fireflies, and a similar briefing will be given to troop 746 between 8 and 8:30 p.m. on Friday, 23 July, at the Mowatt Memorial Methodist Church, 40 Ridge. Meanwhile the management of High's dairy on Centerway has donated the use of one of its freezers as a convenient collection point for fireflies.

In addition to the Boy Scouts, individual volunteers are heartily urged to join the project. They are invited to attend the briefing session on Friday and may obtain more information on the project from Robert Maples at 474-5413 (in the evening only, please). For their use we print below instructions for best carrying out the task:

The most convenient time for catching fireflies is around dusk, after the little blinkers have put on their tail lights but before it gets too dark to see the rest of them. Store the fireflies alive in a box with ventilation holes (you can punch those with a nail) and when you've accumulated enough, freeze them in your refrigerator's freezer compartment. The frozen fireflies may be taken out for a moment in order to transfer them to an airtight jar, such as a clean baby-food jar (preferably, pre-chilled in the freezer), but never long enough for the fireflies to warm up, for if this is allowed to happen the chemicals needed by NASA will rapidly break down.

To carry the jar to High's surround it with ice cubes in a plastic jug or a coffee can. (Putting this in a paper bag also helps preserve the chill.) A small label on the jar, stating your name and the number of fireflies inside, is also suggested; for if your haul exceeds 100, NASA will give you as token of its appreciation a small medal especially prepared for the project.

So to all our volunteers—good hunting!

Correction

To the Editor:

Thank you for the rather surprisingly full coverage you gave my report on the questionnaire at the August 4 GHI Board meeting. My position and responsibilities in this matter are not as the article implied, however, and although I do not think your reporter had any intention of misrepresenting the situation, I would like the record set straight in order to avoid any possibility of unnecessary hard feelings.

I have never been assigned to the Long Range Planning Committee and thus have no official connection with its ambitious questionnaire. But when I realized that the Board, under pressure of time, would have to move ahead on new housing without the guidance the questionnaire could provide, I tracked it down, blew the dust off and spent July 4 weekend with an adding machine.

Using some elementary information retrieve techniques, I was able to extract more data from the questionnaire than was germane to my report. Some of this data has considerable bearing on the socio-economic role of the corporation and, indirectly at least, on the projected housing program.

Assault Conviction Follows Altercation

A difference of opinion about driving led to a case of assault in Greenbelt last week. On July 15 at 3 p.m. residents at the intersection of Hillside and Research Roads noticed three men in a car which was being driven in an erratic manner. When the car slowed down, James Herbert Stone, 22-G Hillside, approached the driver and stated his opinion of the latter's driving ability. The driver, John D. Perky, 313 Ninth Street, Laurel, promptly got out of the car and slapped his critic.

Perky was found guilty of assault and battery and fined $50. He has also been charged with reckless driving, but has not yet been tried.

Festival Notes

by Rita Fisher

Plans for the 1965 Annual Greenbelt Labor Day Festival are proceeding nicely, according to Leo Gerton, chairman of the committee. The three-day affair will be held in the north parking lot at the shopping center where permanent lighting fixtures and, it is hoped, adequate electrical power to run the carnival rides, will be available.

The carnival rides are again being brought in by the Buddy Joseph family and will consist of three kiddie rides and four adult rides. Ticket booths will be manned by members of the local Golden Age Club.

The Booth Committee reports that written requests for booths are being received from various organizations; they will feature games of chance and food items such as hot dogs, cokes, snowballs, ice cream, milk, watermelon and Pop Cipriano's meatballs. An information booth will be set up with a running resume of the daily scheduled events; it will also serve as headquarters for committee chairmen. A fire prevention booth is being planned by the Greenbelt Fire Dept. Also on hand will be the portrait sketchers, who were very well patronized last year.

Featured events during the carnival will be the Art Show and permanent displays at the Youth Center. The Art Show being organized by Frank Lewis will be held for the entire duration of the Festival, and awards will be given on Labor Day. The displays will be in the form of exhibits by the various Greenbelt organizations showing their aims, achievements, and hopes for the future. Jim Cassells is chairing this part of the Festival.

Activities planned at the Center School include a presentation by the Greenbelt Players, a public

Builder Ignores Warning Charged With Littering

Stanley Schultz, a builder engaged in construction at the end of Lakeside drive, has been warned several times - beginning June 3 - to stop littering public roads. Following continued complaints from residents, Schultz was arrested on July 16 and charged with violating a city ordinance. The case goes before the People's Court in Hyattsville on August 3.

dance, the Queen Contest, and a talent show.

Once again, and again by popular demand, the Lions Club will serve a pancake breakfast on the Sunday morning preceding Labor Day.

Athletic events are now being scheduled by Richie Stevenson, chairman of that committee. These activities include baseball games, golf chipping, horseshoe pitching, an AAU swimming meet, and a road race.

Frank Lewis is again bringing the choral group from NSA to perform. Their program promises a variety of enjoyable music.

The next meeting of the Festival Committee will be held on August 5 at 8 p.m. at Twin Pines. Anyone interested in attending may do so.
